Teachings of Chattampi Swamikal

Avoid boastful thoughts about your physical achievements and material accumulations. Contemplate over the ultimate reality of existence. That alone will give meaning to life.

The whole universe is the manifestation of the one. The apparent differences between different objects are only an illusion. An understanding of this truth will lead to liberation and salvation

This universe is the manifestation of but one mind. Alienation between one mind and another mind is unnatural. The mind of man is in no way different from the mind of any other creature

Works of Chattampi Swamikal

Swami led a wandering life and left what he wrote with those who were with him at the time of writing. There were no later attempts to collect and conserve them which led to their gradual loss. A few works that got unearthed and published eight decades after his death and inspiring serious discussion show the value and the extent of the loss that occurred to Kerala society which was at one time unmindful of preserving his works. Recently Centre for South Indian Studies has initiated Chattampi Swami Digital Archive (CSDA) project as an attempt to collect and collate documents related to Swami that still exist.

Major works of Swami available in print are:

Advaita Chinta Paddhati
Keralathile Desa Namangal
Kristumata Nirupanam
Jivakarunya Nirupanam
Devarcha Paddhatiyude Upodghatam
Devi Manasa Puja Stotra Vyakhyanam
Nijananda Vilasam
Pranavavum Sankhya Darsanavum
Prapanchathil Sthri Purushanmarkkulla Sthanam

Maha Samadhi

Towards the end of his life, Swamikal settled down at Panmana, a village in Kollam district. Swamikal attained Maha Samadhi on May 5, 1924. His mortal remains were enshrined at his Samadhistanam at Panmana. This site is today called Panmana Ashramam, which is a centre for social service and spiritual practices.

DR. SAMUEL CHRISTIAN FRIEDRICH HAHNEMANN (1755-1843)

Samuel Hahnemann was the founder of Homoeopathy. He established the fundamental principles of the science and art of Homoeopathy.

He is called the Father of Experimental Pharmacology because he was the first physician to prepare medicines in a specialized way; proving them on healthy human beings, to determine how the medicines acted to cure diseases. Before Hahnemann, medicines were given on speculative indications, mainly on the basis of authority without experimental verification.

Hahnemann discovered the remedial powers of drugs and inert substances such as gold, platinum, silica, vegetable charcoal, lycopodium, etc. by preparing the medicines through potentization.

HOMOEOPATHY

Homoeopathy was discovered by a German Physician, Dr. Christian Friedrich Samuel Hahnemann (1755-1843), in the late eighteenth century. It is a therapeutic system of medicine based on the principle, "Similia Similibus Curentur" or „let likes be treated by likes“. Homoeopathy is a method of treatment for curing the patient by medicines that possess the power of producing similar symptoms in a healthy human being simulating the natural disease, which it can cure in the diseased person.

Homoeopathic medicines are prepared from traces of animal, plant, mineral and other natural substances, by a standard method called dynamisation or potentization. Through „potentization“, their potential is enhanced enormously to combat ailments while at the same time absence of toxicity is assured. The medicines are usually proved in healthy human beings, to ascertain their curative properties. The system believes in the existence of a regulating force (Vital Force) in the organism, which plays a vital role during health, disease and cure. The symptoms are considered as the body's natural reaction to the illness and help to find a remedy against the illness. The remedies work by stimulating the body's defense mechanism to correct itself naturally. Homoeopathic medicines are most cost effective, palatable, have no adverse side effects, can be administered easily. Homoeopathy has been useful in treatment of psychosomatic disorders, autoimmune diseases, geriatric and pediatric disorders, ailments during pregnancy, obstinate skin diseases, life style disorders and allergies, etc. It also has a positive role in improving the quality of life in incurable chronic diseases like cancer, HIV/AIDS, terminally ill patients and incapacitating diseases like rheumatoid arthritis, etc.

DURATION OF THE COURSE

Homeopathy, like other regular medical courses, requires five and a half years medical training. This also includes one year of compulsory rotatory internship. Seats to BHMS are filled up through an All-India Entrance examination (NEET-UG).

The undergraduate course in Homeopathy is Bachelor of Homeopathic Medicine and Surgery (BHMS). There are 221 Homeopathic colleges conducting the BHMS course in India. These colleges are affiliated to various universities.

The B.H.M.S. course is spread over a period of 5 ½ years including compulsory rotatory Internship of one year duration after passing the final degree examination. On completion of the internship and on the recommendation of the Principal concerned, the University shall issue the degree to the candidates.
